Privacy

Was that our client's personal information that was leaked?

A privacy breach is like having your home burglarized. How would you feel if it happened to you?

What would a privacy breach do to us, as an organization? In addition to the damage to the victim, it would damage our image as soon as it hit the news.

You play a crucial role in guarding our employees and clients' personal information and fulfilling our legal obligations pertaining to privacy.

Think Twice!

When handling personal information, think of it as your own. Keep it private!

Be the strong link!

- ☑ Protect the personal information that we have collected from privacy breaches by respecting our privacy policy and guidelines.
- ☑ Obtain consent before collecting personal information and only collect what is necessary.
- ☑ Use personal information only for the purposes established by our organization.
- ☑ Destroy, erase or anonymize information when it no longer serves its initial purpose.
